Submit Manuscript Types of Contributions The International Journal Of Clinical And Experimental Hypnosis publishes research and clinical papers dealing with hypnosis in psychology, psychiatry, the medical and dental specialties, and allied areas of science. There are four types of Journal contributions you might make. The editors encourage submission of articles devoted to clinical counseling issues and specific techniques applicable to the treatment of both psychological and medical disorders.

- Basic Research and Theory Articles. The Journal review process is described in our "Information for Authors" section. Research papers should conform to the usual conventions and structure. Integrative theory papers, carefully grounded in empirical work, are encouraged.

- Clinical Research and Theory Articles. The Journal particularly encourages authors to submit case-based empirical studies on the practice of hypnosis. These articles should include some form of systematic observation, but need not involve large group methodologies. Intensive time-series studies of one, or only a few patients is perfectly acceptable. Clinical theory papers, especially those which integrate research and practice, are also encouraged. (see "Information for Authors" for more) Information for Authors Aims and Scope: The International Journal of Clinical and Experimental Hypnosis publishes only original research and clinical papers dealing with hypnosis and psychology, psychiatry, the medical and mental specialties, and allied areas of science. Submissions include clinical and experimental studies, discussions of theory, significant historical and cultural material. Unsolicited commentaries on articles appearing in the journal are not accepted. It is the purpose of this journal to present in an integrated manner the best research in scientific hypnosis and to encourage support continued through inquiry. Address manuscripts to the Editor:

The email should contain an attachment with the manuscript prepared using MS Word. For purposes of standardization and translatability, the word 'hypnotizability' is the preferred term to be used as the descriptor of the capacity to experience hypnosis (hypnotic responsiveness). Other terms, such as susceptibility, suggestibility, trance-ability, etc. should be avoided (See Christensen, 2005, Vol. 53, #3, 281-289). Each manuscript must be accompanied by a statement that it has not been published elsewhere and that it has not been submitted simultaneously for publication elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce copyrighted material from other sources and are required to sign an agreement for the transfer of copyright to the publisher. All accepted manuscripts, artwork, and photographs become the property of the publisher.

All parts of the manuscript should be typewritten, double-spaced, with margins of at least one inch on all sides. Number manuscript pages consecutively throughout the paper. Authors should also supply a shortened version of the title suitable for the running head, not exceeding 50 character spaces. Each article should be summarized in an abstract of not more than 120 words. Avoid abbreviations, diagrams, and reference to the text in the abstract. References. Cite in the text by author and date (Smith, 1983). Prepare reference list in accordance with the APA Publication Manual, 5th ed.
